Well, sir, what's the matter?" said Abethe thy, the great English surgern, to a cadaveror coking patient, who had called to consult him.

SATURDAY EVENING, March 31, 1866.

The course of Gold is just now watcher rith more interest than has been accorded it for some time previously, and the probabilities as to its immediate future are matter of quite earnest speculation with the business community, particularly that portion who as importers of foreign merchandize or holders of large stocks purchased under a much higher rate of the gold premium, are nost directly affected by the price of gold. That the sharp decline of the past two nonths has told with severe effect upon the importing interest, is unquestionable, and n view of this there is a disposition on some hands to deprecate the employment of any means calculated to increase the influences favoring a further fall in the market value ong as good music is appreciated. His favoring a further fall in the market value endering of 'Rain upon the Boof' is the inest thing we ever listened to in the way that the contraction this feeling, chiefly, that the contraction policy of Scoretary McCulloch was defeated, and it is this tha has induced certain acknowledged organs of the Treasury policy to ignore their previously consistently maintained views in reference to this particular feature of our finances, and endeavor to show that the steps siready taken toward specie resumption have been mischievous. To the grea mass of the people we believe these opinions will carry but little weight, because they are manifestly put forth in the interest of a class who have grown into fortune at the expense of the people, and who suffer now mply because their greed for gain lod them blindly on, and they overleapt th nark of safety. So far as American interests are concerned this class have been their greatest enemy, for they have flooded our markets with foreign goods, for which they > their industry for a generation to come, and to the undoubted injury and loss of home enterprize. It is this class who will be prostrated by a return to specie, and it is this class who alone will be benefitted by main ining a depreciated currency and a high eminm on gold. We have never been the advocates of ctreme or foreible measures for remedying r financial evils, nor are we now. We have unbounded faith in the regulating sower of trade, and only a minimum confiience in legislation, which is at post falible near-sighted, and of temporary expediency But we are convinced of the duty and neessity of as early return to the specie stanlard as possible, and to this end we would withdraw no influence that looks to this obect which may be conservatively employed. The country demands a stable currency, one which represents the same value to morrow and next month as to-day, and not, to use the language of Representative Garfield, a legalized lie." The sanctity of contracts equires such a currency; it is demanded as a security to industry and enterprize : it is an indispensable pre-requisite to a sound, healthy and permanently prosperous trade, and at no time in our history as a nation has such a condition been more urgently demanded than now. Every business man knows the dangers and embarrassments of a disordered, fluctuating currency, and no man can be blind to the advantages of a sirculating medium that is a real and subantial representative of his property and ais earnings. We have made good progress of late in he desired direction, all sophistry to the ontrary notwithstanding; and the present favorable condition of our European accounts is abundantly shown in the increasing weakness of rates for foreign exchange. mporters have been and are large buyers gold, which they are holding to maintain prices has the premium, and hence we hear that gold is "scarce for delivery;" but they are fight-ing against the insvitable logic of events. The demand from Europe for our cotton and ur bonds is steadily growing and as steadily working a reversal in our commercial ations. It is no fanciful view that looks orward to a drain of specie from Europe .-Meantime we are accumulating our own reduct, at the present rate of seventy to lighty millions per annum, and promising. with increased facilities for extracting the metal, a much larger yield. With these ensuragements we need not despair of our errency, even though it should continue at its present volume. The discount demand at the banks con nues quite moderate, and the general ter lency of the market is easier. Some of the banks disbursed quite largely to-day on acsunt of oil and other taxes, but beyond this he draft upon balances was light. Eastern Exchange remains very close, but rates are unchanged and steady at par buying and 1-10 premium selling.

Gold was without decided change to-day, Gold was without decided change to-day, but firm under the speculative movement, which is mainly in the hands of importers. The contradiction of the statement t'ast the May interest on the Five-twenty coupons would be anticipated early in April, prevented a decline in the gold premium. The price closed at 125@1251. Government securities are very firm, and gold bonds were generally higher in New York to-day.

It is understood that the forthcoming exhibit of the public debt will not show any reduction of the principal of the debt, but will show a large increase of the balance on hand in the Treasury.
